

Part II — Bhakti-kāṇḍa

द्वितीयः षट्कः : ద్వితీయ షట్కము

The Divine & Devotion — Chapters 7 to 12 of the Bhagavad Gītā

Chapters 7–12 answer the second great question: "Who is God, and how do I relate to Him?"

Where Part I taught the seeker who he is, Part II turns the gaze outward and upward — to the Divine itself. Kṛṣṇa is no longer only the friend on the chariot; He gradually unveils Himself as the source of all that exists, the cosmic-form devourer of worlds, and finally — the intimately personal beloved who can be reached by simple, sincere love.

The arc moves from cosmic wonder to tender devotion (bhakti). It is the section that gives the Gītā its heart.

The six yogas of Part II — at a glance

CH	NAME (YOGA)	ESSENTIAL TAKE-AWAY
7	Jñāna-Vijñāna Yoga ज्ञानविज्ञानयोगः జ్ఞానవిజ్ఞానయోగము "Knowledge & Realization"	The Lord is both the manifest (lower nature) and the unmanifest (higher nature) reality — "the string on which all beads are strung" (7.7). Four kinds of people approach Him: the distressed, the seeker, the wealth-seeker, and the wise.
8	Akṣara-Brahma Yoga अक्षरब्रह्मयोगः అక్షరబ్రహ్మయోగము "The Imperishable Brahman"	Whatever you remember at the moment of death — that you become (8.6). Therefore: remember the Divine always (8.7). Death isn't terrifying when consciousness is already trained.
9	Rāja-Vidyā Rāja-Guhya Yoga राजविद्याराजगुह्ययोगः రాజవిద్యారాజగుహ్యయోగము "The Royal Knowledge / Royal Secret"	Pure, simple devotion (bhakti) is the "king of secrets". "Even a leaf, a flower, a fruit, or water — if offered with love, I accept" (9.26). God doesn't care about your sophistication — He cares about your heart .
10	Vibhūti Yoga विभूतियोगः విభూతియోగము "Divine Glories"	Wherever there is beauty, power, brilliance, or excellence — there I AM. ("Of mountains I am Meru, of rivers the Gaṅgā, of letters I am A...") The world is shot through with divinity ; learn to see it.
11	Viśva-Rūpa-Darśana Yoga विश्वरूपदर्शनयोगः విశ్వరూపదర్శనయోగము "Vision of the Cosmic Form"	Kṛṣṇa reveals His terrifying, all-encompassing cosmic form — galaxies, gods, demons, time devouring all worlds (kālo'smi , 11.32). Arjuna is overwhelmed and asks for the gentle form back. Lesson: God is unimaginably vast — and also intimately personal.
12	Bhakti Yoga भक्तियोगः భక్తియోగము "The Yoga of Devotion"	The path of loving the personal form is easier for embodied beings; both reach the same goal. The Lord describes His ideal devotee: friendly to all, free from "I" and "mine", even-minded in joy and sorrow — and says "such a devotee is dear to Me".

The arc of Part II · Knowing the Divine (Ch 7–8) → Simple devotion as supreme path (Ch 9) → Seeing the Divine in all (Ch 10) → Cosmic terror & awe (Ch 11) → Intimate love (Ch 12).

निर्ममो निरहङ्कारः समदुःखसुखः क्षमी ॥
सन्तुष्टः सततं योगी यतात्मा दृढनिश्चयः ।

"Free from hatred toward any being, friendly and compassionate, without 'mine'-ness or ego, equal in pain and pleasure, forgiving, ever content, disciplined, of firm resolve, with mind and intellect surrendered to Me — such a devotee is dear to Me."

□ If you remember just three lines from all of Part II:

1. sūtre maṇi-gaṇā iva (7.7) — all things are strung on the Divine like beads on a thread.
2. patraṁ puṣpaṁ phalaṁ toyam (9.26) — a leaf, a flower, a fruit, water — offered with love, He accepts.
3. advēṣṭā sarva-bhūtānāṁ maitraḥ karuṇa eva ca (12.13) — the devotee dear to God is friendly to all.
